John Wood Sets New Precedent in Race For Rail Commissioner

Something new in Texas politics has been developed by John Wood, candidate for nomination to the railroad commission, who has appointed his wife to be his official campaign manager. Mr. Wood, at present a state highway commissioner, will do the traveling and speech-making, while his wife will be in charge of campaign organization in his state headquarters at Austin. The voters are going to look forward with interest to see how this husband-wife team succeeds in the first venture for either of them into the field of elective office seeking.

This is the second precedent set by Mr. Wood. The first was when he was appointed chairman of the highway commission and he made his home in Austin and devoted all his time to the job. The law does not require highway commissioners to spend all their time in Austin or to devote all their time to department matters, and Mr. Wood is the first member since the commission was created to do so. He is now completing his fifth year as a member, and during those five years he has worked energetically and loyally to develop the fine system of highways that Texas now has.

John Wood is primarily a business man and not a so-called politician. He was in the mercantile business in Timpson for many years until in 1933, when Governor Ferguson appointed him to be her secretary, and this was followed shortly by appointment to the highway commission, where for two years he was chairman. Hundreds of county officials and delegations of citizens from every section of the state can and do attest to his fairness in all his actions as a member of the commission. It is on his splendid record in his present office that he is seeking the nomination to be a member of the state railroad commission, where an equally broad field for honest, energetic service to the state awaits him.

City of Hearne Moves To Build Country and Pool

The City of Hearne took a forward step last week while Cameron was looking west and stopping progress.

The Chamber of Commerce in Hearne sent a delegation to the City Council to discuss a proposed WPA project to build a Country Club with golf course and a swimming beach.

Contrasting the forward looking spirit of the business men in Hearne with the refusal of Cameron to go forward, the committee from the Chamber of Commerce turned over to the board of Alderman in Hearne checks in the amount of $1810 and pledges amounting to $400 all from local citizens who are contributing to the cost of construction.

The citizens of Hearne realize the advantages of such improvements and facilities to entertain the people.

Plans made at Hearne call for definite information to be assembled in two weeks at which time plans will get under way if the project is at all available.

Friends of outdoor recreation and city builders everywhere know that parks adaquate for future needs is the problem of every American city The country club property in Cameron consisting of 100 acres with club house, golf course and lakes could have been purchased for $14.-000. It is now regarded as doubtful if the property is for sale at any price to the public.

Watson Withdraws From Race For Representative

To the People of Milam County:

Due to certain circumstances over which I have no control I find that it is impossible for me to continue my race for Representative of the 64th District composed of Milam county.

It is with regret that I withdraw form this race, and to my many friends, who encouraged me, and to the many who pledged me their active support I can only thank them from the depth of my heart. It has always been my ambition to serve the people of my county in some official capacity and this desire will continue.

Thanking all of you again who aided and encouraged me, I am

Sincerely yours,
JOHN B. WATSON.

R. Mullinax, prominent farmer of the Salem community, was bitten by a black widow spider Wednesday, and was in a very critical condition up to Thursday morning. His many friends hmope for him a speedy recovery.

CCC President

EMORY B. CAMP
Newly Elected President of the Chamber of Commerce

EMORY B. CAMP HEADS CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Emory B. Camp was elected president of the Chamber of Commerce on Tuesday night to succeed E. D. Parnell, resigned.

Mr. Parnell has asked for a leave of 9 months from the Cameron School Board and will teach in A & M College. Mr. Camp was first vice president.

The Directors were faced with a legal problem on the election. The constitution makes no provision for election of officers other than at regular intervals of one year. It also provides for a secret ballot. A book on parlimentary proceedure was cited but only provides that the vice president shall preside in the absence of the president.

A new provision will be written into the constitution to provide for such a situation in the future.

R. G. Grabein, second vice president took the place of first vice president. Under the plan followed Tuesday night, the third vice president, W. F. Paden, would have been elevated to second vice president. The constitution provides the manager shall be the third vice president and the Chamber of Commerce would now be obliged to elect a manager. On direct nomination however John Jeter was elected second vice president.

Mr. Camp, criminal district attorney, has served the Chamber of Commerce on various committees and will bring to the presidency a wealth of experience and prestige.

Snake With Two Legs Killed Near Ad Hall Monday

Here's one for Ripley! Believe it or not, a spread head or hissing snake with two legs 6 inches from the end of its tail, was killed Monday by Rudolph Langer on the Henry Hlavacek farm near Ad Hall. The snake became entangled in a cultivator wheel and almost fell on Langer. The legs were very short and had claws like a cat. The snake was so unusual it was brought to The Herald office by Mrs. Henry Hlavacek. Lack of place and conditions under which to preserve it, the snake was thrown away. This story should bring forward some good snake stories. For the time being the snake with legs, killed at Ad Hall, sets a high mark for the unbelievable.

Matula Family is Grateful for Benefit Game

Ladis Matula, ace pitcher for the Cameron Comets, injured recently in a car accident, was doing well at Cameron Hospital and was elated over the public response to the benefit game played Sunday between Cameron and Val Verde.

Mrs. Geo. Matula, mother of the injured boy, expressed her thanks along with her son for the interest of friends and the general public. More than $107 was realized from the sale of tickets.

"We are deeply grateful to the people for their concern over Ladis' condition. We believe he will get well now and certainly what his friends did was a great encouragement to him. We appreciate the gift and Ladis joins me in thanking each one," said Mrs. Matula as she sat by the bed of the injured son.

The money was delivered to Ladis by Bob Murphy of the A & W Sales Company Store, manager of the baseball club. A hundred dollar bill was included.

Doctors have been fighting infection in the injured arm and side. They believe he has a fine chance now to recover strength and use of his arm.

"Never wrap the ice, for without contact between the circulating air and melted ice water on the surface of the ice, the air is not properly conditioned and proper refrigeration is impossible," told Mrs. G. G. McDonald of the Ad Hal Hall Demonstration Club, who gave a talk on "Care of Refrigerators."

Mrs. Alver Gravender explained where to put food in the refrigerator. "In ice boxes the coolest parts are determined by the air currents. You should learn their path in your box. Dairy products, meat, fish and leftovers, which contain milk should be placed in the coolest spot. Put odorous foods where air leaves food chamber to re-enter the ice chamber."

PUT THIS Feather in your LEGISLATOR'S HAT!

Don't Let the Lone Star State be Alone in unfair restrictions on Motor Transportation.

Cargoes coming to Texas must be transferred to more trucks at the border, thereby blocking interstate commerce, raising shipping costs, increasing congestion, jeopardizing safety. All other states permit heavier loads with no highway damage and less public hazard. Don't let Texas be alone. Speak to your legislator about it.

Vote for the Man who Votes to Repeal the 7,000 lb. Load LAW.

Motor transportation is very vital to the progress and development of Texas. Its quick, progress and development of Texas. Its quick, mobile, economical service is important to every Texas citizen. It must not be put in a straight-jacket of hastily conceived, ill-advised laws which curtail its public service. Each vote to repeal the 7,000-lb. load Law is a vote in the public interest. The legislator who stands for its repeal is worthy of your vote. Put this big feather in his hat! Make sure he votes in YOUR interest!

When He Votes for Repeal He's Working for YOU.

Repeal of the 7,000-pound load limit Law means allowing more adequate loads, not bigger trucks, but fewer trucks with less highway hazard, lower shipping costs to producer, lower living costs to consumer. Negro Dies From Burns in Garage Accident Here

Bud Woods, 26, died in a local hospital Monday morning from burns sustained in an accident while working several weeks ago in the garage of the Sapp Motor Company where he was employed.

Woods was doing a welding job and had left his torch some distance away while he worked on a tank that was leaking gasoline. The fuel saturated his clothes and in a moment he was ablaze as he walked by the torch. Running into the street Woods fought the flames.

When he was finally overcome little clothing was left on his body. Rushed to the hospital he was given all available treatment and at first it was believed he would recover. Doctors said that few men thus burned have escaped with their lives.

John Sapp of the Sapp Motor Co., said that Woods was a valued employe and expressed sorrow over his death. The deceased had many friends in Cameron.

An early morning wedding was an event of much interest to many friends when Miss Hilda Burke became the bride of W. I. Clark, Jr., Sunday, June 12th at 8.30 o'clock at the first Baptist church, with the Rev. Vernon Miles, pastor reading the ring ceremony. The church was attractive with its floral decorations of ferns and daisies, placed at attractive points. The wedding music was given by Miss Ida Byrd Mayfield who presided at the piano, and Ray Duckworth of Marshall, who formerly lived in Cameron and was music director of the Baptist church, sang "Sweetest Story Ever Told.' The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Burke, was beautifully attired in a late model of rust pink crepe with black accessories. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Fred Graves, of El Paso. After completing high school at Yoe High School, she has been connected with the Central Loan Company of Cameron. She was popular in social and church activities, and has enjoyed the love and esteem of a large circle of friends. The bride groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William I. Clark of Cameron, was reared here, and since completing his high school at Yoe High, has been connected with the Southern Pacific Lines as assistant engineer under the direction of the chief engineer at Houston, where they will make their home. He was attended by his brother, Dick Clark. Out of town relatives and friends present at the wedding were: Mrs. Marv Maples of Rio Grande Valley, Mr and Mrs. Dick Clark of Waxahachie, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Duckworth of Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Schulz, Leland Burke and daughter, Maurine of Houston, Alton Schulz and Miss Carolyn Malina of Temple.

A beautiful social courtesy on the social calendar was when Mrs. R. B. Rylander, Sr., Mrs Wilbur DuBois and Miss Grace Markham were joint hostesses to a miscellaneous shower given Monday evening, honoring Miss Helen Dierr, a bride to be. Indoor games, directed by Mrs. W. H. Stafford were enjoyed. Mrs. Walter Burns gave a reading on "Husbands' and Miss Doris Stedham gave a tap dance. Mrs. R. B. Rylander presented the honoree with a beautiful bride's book. At this time Mrs. Walter Burns brought in a midget barrel labeled "Foster Drugs," which contained many beautiful and useful gifts which she presented to the honoree who opened them and thanked givers in her own sweet manner. Misses Markham and Nelta Dierr, sister of the bride to be, served cake and ice cream to about forty guests. Miss Dierr was attractively dressed in a new model of green print sheer. Miss Dierr will become the bride of Bob Foster, of San Antonio, who now is pharmacist for a drug concern in San Antonio where they will make their home in the future. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dierr, was reared in Cameron, and for several years has been employed in the office of City Tax Assessor and is popular with a large circle of friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Weems celebrated their silver wedding Wednesday evening, June 15th, at their home from 7 to 10 p. m. with open house commemorating their twenty-fifth year of wedded bliss. In the receiving line were Mr. and Mrs. Weems, their daughter, Miss Nona Weems and Miss Virginia Weems, a niece of the honorees. On June 15, 1913, Miss Etta Phipps became the bride of Roy Weems at the home of her parents near Maysfield, and came to Cameron where they have made their home. They enjoy a large share of friendship in and around Cameron. and are highly respected citizens of our town where they have made their home. The home was beautifully decorated with handsome zenias and daisies that lent floral charm to the scene. Mr. and Mrs. Weems were presented a beautiful silver pitcher by their pastor, Rev. J. Coy Williams, Board of Stewards and Trustees of the First Methodist church. They were recipients of many lovely gifts, telegrams and messages of love and esteem. A beautiful guest book, hand painted, the work of Miss Mollie Moore, was presided over by the daughter, Miss Nona, where over sixty-five friends who called during the evening, inscribed their names, leaving a beautiful memory for the occasion. Disease Control Among Fowls Part Of Poultry Program In Milam County

How to control cholera, typhoid and fowl pox or "sorehead" by the use of vaccination was shown in demonstrations the past week at the farms of A. L. Kennon, Belmena, John McLerran, Hoyte and Frank Pfarrdrescher, Ad Hall. Pointers on culling and other poultry problems were given the groups. E. D. Parnell, Cameron Vocational Agriculture teacher, was in charge of the work. F. E. Woodruff, chairman, C. C. Agriculture committee, and the Home Demonstration Agents co-operated in the demonstrations.

With "sorehead" or pox the fillicle method of vaccination is used, it was stated. A few feathers were pulled from the leg and the liquid vaccine was brushed on the feather follicles. The cost is about half a cent per fowl and one application gives the fowl life time immunity, it was said.

With cholera and typhoid a regular needle is used with each bird getting one C C of the bacterin as a preventative dose. The dose is doubled for fowls sick with either of the diseases.

Another series of demonstrations will be planned at a later date this summer, Mr. Woodruff stated.

E. Horstmann for Constable of Precinct 6 at Buckholts

E. Horstmann of Buckholts announced Wednesday that he would be a candidate for Constable of Precinct 6 effective with the Primary election to be held on Saturday, July 23rd.

Mr. Horstmann formerly served as deputy sheriff at Buckholts and two years ago was defeated by a small margin of only 30 votes when he ran for constable. He enters the race this time because so many of his friends and voters of the Precinct have asked him to make the race.

Mr. Horstmann said that he would try to serve the people of the precinct in accordance with their wishes and although he realizes the position pays little, he responds to the many who have asked him to run for the office. He desires to be of service and submits his record and his experience as an officer which he believes qualifies him well for the place he now seeks.

In making his announcement Mr. Horstmann was pleased to note that so many had requested that he enter the race. He asks his friends to become active in his behalf and pledges them that he will do all in his power, if eleced to render a faithful and impartial service as Constable for the Precinct.

Mr. Horstmann has lived in Buckholts for years, one of the pioneer families and knows the people and feels that he can give the best possible service as Constable. He will appreciate your vote and support.

Ernest O. Thompson Wants Better Texas Old Age Pension Law

AUSTIN, June 11.—Ernest Thompson's new proposal for adjusting old age assistance discrepancies was one of the most interesting developments of the week in Texas governor's race, political observers here agreed.

Speaking at his West Texas opening in Abilene last Friday night, Thompson surprised his listeners with a statement that "the true spirit of old age assistance, as Texans want it, cannot be carried out under the present law."

The candidate said he referred to the clause in the law which provides that the applicant's ability to obtain support from other sources is to be considered in determining his eligibility for old age assistance.

"That phrase has been interpreted to meam," said Thompson, "that if a needy old man or woman happens to have a son or daughter who makes four or five dollars a month above bare necessities for themselves, that old person is not entitled to an old age pension.

"Is that what the people of Texas wanted when they ordered that assistance be given every needy Texan over 65 who was not an habitual drundard or criminal?

"I say to you that it was not. I say that it should be changed."

Then Thompson came forward with a specific proposal to change the law.

"As your governor," he pledged, "I will urge the legislature to strike that phrase out of the old age assistance law.

"Furthermore, I will urge the legislature to change this act so as to state specifically that the financial status of children will not be considered in determining the eligibiliy of any applicant for a pension."

It has been Thompson's contention all during the campaign that this practice of denying pensions to needy old folks because their children were judged able to support them is the root of many inconsistencies and injustices. He made plain at Abilene that he considered the wording of the law itself responsible for most of the trouble.

"With the law revised, as I will advocate," he continued, "inconsistencies and injustices which exist because of the present law shall cease, and no needy old person shall be forced upon his or her children who are barely able to support themselves.

"I do not believe aged and needy parents should be forced on bended knee to beg their children for the necessities of life."

Having accused his opponents of "copy-catting" his platform, Thompson wound up his pension proposal with a challenge to "copy this".

Mrs. Holder was born in Alabama in 1854. She came to Texas in 1890. She has been a Christian ever since she was fourteen years old. Grand mother Holder was a good woman and was loved by everybody that knew her. God knows best what to do.

No sorrow or pain can enter there.
She's happy in that home up there
With the Angels so fair.

The funeral services were held at the home of her daughter Mrs. G. N. Elmore at 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon, June 9, 1938, and the body was taken to the White Cemetery at Sharp and laid to rest. The family has the sympathy of this community.

Farmer's Soil "Gone With the Wind" But College Course in Conservation Tells How Land Can Stage Comeback

DR. H. H. BENNETT, CHIEF, SOIL CONSERVATION SERVICE
DR. WALTER P. TAYLOR, TEXAS COOPERATIVE WILD LIFE SERVICE
DR. H. N. WHEELER, U. S. FOREST SERVICE
BEN THOMPSON; NATIONAL PARK SERVICE

DENTON, Texas — "Blown-out" wheat fields like the one in the upper picture can be returned to paying crops like those shown in the second picture, according to U. S. Soil Conservation officials.

This is but one chapter in a dramatic conservation story to be told by 24 lectures, including 18 federal experts, in a course in conservation of natural resources to open June 8 and run through July 16 at the North Texas State Teachers College this summer.

Among the outstanding group of speakers scheduled are Dr. H. H. Bennett, chief of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service, and other government men pictured above. All lectures are open to the public.

The two farm pictures are of the same field. The lower was taken 10 months after the blown-out wheat land had been terraced and listed to milo maize on the contour.

"Forgotten Men" of Nation to Celebrate 24th Birthday, June 19; Its Father's Day

On Sunday, June 19th, the forgotten men of the Nation celebrate their 24th birthday, and if all the efforts now being made to pull them from obscurity are realized, 25,000,000 dads may overnight become America's remembered men, for next Sunday is Father's Day.

A country which now celebrates more than 85 special days and weeks has managed to squeeze in the third Sunday in June to pay tribute to the man who pays the freight for all the other celebrations.

Apparently father is only one-third as popular as Mother, if the volume of Father's Day telegrams is any criterion, says Miss Gee, local Western Union manager. As recently as 1928 Father's Day was only one-seventh as popular as Mother's Day, but two years later there was one Father's Day telegram for every four on Mother's Day. The depression set Dad back to his 1928 rating, but since then his climb has been faster than ever before.

Where once it was considered somewhat of a joke to remember Dad on Father's Day, the observance of the day has now become firmly entertained, although no special flower has been selected for him. The Dandelion has been suggested but flower-by-telegraph officials will not commit themselves.

Mrs. John Brude Dodd of Spokane, Washington, originated Father's Day in 1910, and the occasion gathered sufficient momentum for congress to enforce the celebration of the day in 1914. Efforts are under way this year to have President Roosevelt issue an official Father's Day proclamation.

Literature Gives Life Balanced Outlook

By BEATRICE WALSCHAK

Salutatorian Class of 1938

It is my privilege to welcome you, members of the board, faculty, student friends parents and visitors, to our exercises this evening. We invite you to think with us of our achievements and our aims as we celebrate the conclusion of our High School careers.

In our High Schools today the greatest stress is upon the practical. We are taught history, science, and mathematics. Politicial and vocational subjects are wisely and necessarily provided for us. All that can be done is done to aid the graduate in gaining economic security, in developing intelligent citizenship, and in living a useful, happy life. This in itself is good, is necessary, but after we leave here tonight, for many of us education, or at least school, will be completed. Will a practical education be sufficient for a complete, an abundant life? The body and even the mind alone cannot be depended upon to guide us, because our physical wants and desires are usually petty and often deceptive. So the spirit is vitally important; thus it is definitely not enough that we can vote, can supply ourselves with the necessities of life and mingle gracefully with other people.

Men of all ags have found an answer to the need for something beyond the practical in a world that is often unexplored, the world of literature; and that world is just as accessible to us today as it was to them then. You parents and you graduates are probably asking, "But what can literature do for me?" There are at least five things that it can do.

The ordinary man wants to be satisfied with his station in life, and it is through literature that he can easily be shown the glory of the common place. Dr. Robert M. Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, said in an address to the Board of Eduction, "Students should read the great books of the past instead of text books which merely gave the second-hand versions of the great books."

Text books teach us, inform and guide us in this parctical life, but the great books provide the material for our inspirations. Although the appreciation of literature is a diversion, it is a vast deal more. It is the most effective and accessible of all the means whereby a man may vitalize his thinking about the common, elemental things of life. We know of no generation totally without a literature. Alexander Pope said, "Vane was the chief's, the sage's pride; for they had no poet, and they died."

Not only is literature a mood, a diversion that glorifies the common life, but it is a form which gives one an outlet and makes him master of his own language. The desire for self-expression in clear words is almost universal. We are not often conscious of it, but as soon as we hear our own thoughts better expressed than we could express them, we realize that they are better and stronger for their adaquate expression. Emerson said, "The man is only half himself; the other half is his expression." It was this passion for self expression that made Abraham Lincoln one of the greatest spokesmen and patriots of his age. Could he have delivered his Gettysburg address had he not spent most of his leisure time, while a boy, reading whatever he could find? It was this reading that helped him to become a creator of universal literature.

Aside from aiding one, as in organizing his thoughts and in mastering his language, literature restores for him the past in most attractive forms, in history, poetry and novels. How many love Scotch history because of Burton's or Mackintosh's learned volumes? Very few; however, do we not all know something of it because of the prose and poetry of Walter Scott and Robert Burns? It is true that the young understand "Paul Revere's Ride" better than a certain chapter from "The History of the American Revolution. History, a mere catalog of facts, cannot rescue from oblivion an event or a name nearly so well as true fiction can. A noble deed is measured not solely by itself, but by the nobleness of the form that commemorates it. This applies to a name as well as to an action. How much more interesting it is to know William Cullen Bryant from his poetry than from his biography. He is revealed completely in "Thanatopsis." From this one poem one can know that he loved nature, that he was either a youth or a very old man when he wrote it, since the theme is death, and since thoughts of death usually come only to the very young or to the very old, that he was simple, sincere, and dignified (his words express such traits,) and that he was in the habit of moralizing.

Human nature in an even broader sense may become more intelligible through experience with it in literature. We cannot all travel; we cannot know all people; yet, from Robinson Crusoe we know lonliness; from A Tale of Two Cities we realize how great human sacrifice is; and from Poe's work we experience mental anguish and infinite hope.

Literature's most important use however, is that of keeping a vision of the ideal before one. Poe's poem, "Eldorado," is a good example. It holds the ideal of life always above the wandering seeker. Andrea del Sarto once said, "Ah, but a man's reach must exceed his grasp, or what's a heaven for?" These eloquent words are a complete summary of idealism. A man's reach exceeds his grasp not only in art but in all that he thinks and does. The ideal must be kept ever before us. And who, if not the poet, a creator of literature, is its standard bearer?

I do not say that literature is the only source of aesthetic joy. It may be found in painting, music, travel, sculpture, but literature does offer one means of attaining a more balanced life than the mere practical. It is perhaps the easiest, the most accessible of all answers to man's needs for something beyond the practical. Longfellow has expressed the true function of literature when he described his entrance into the world of books by saying, "So, as I enter here from day to day, and leave my burden at this minister gate, kneeling in prayer, and not ashamed to pray, the tumult of the time to inarticulate murmurs dies away, while the eternal ages watch and wait."

"And in sure prospect of such lofty bliss, I now enjoy the highest moment—this!"

First Rattler of Season Is Killed

The first rattlesnake of the season was reported killed on Wednesday morning by Al Kocurek who lives on the farm of his father a mile and a half north of the city. The snake was killed by Al early in the morning. It was found near a stalk of cotton where chopping was in progress. About 3 feet in length it had 4 rattles and a button and was a diamond back.

"I want small hooks along my clothes rod for each coat hanger," stated Shirley Cryer, Bedroom Demonstrator for the Val Verde 4H club when she was explaining the construction of her new clothes closet. "In that way the coat hangers will always be the same distance apart and my clothes will not be crowded" she explained further. Shirley figures that her closet will cost approximately $2 when completed.

NEWS FROM HOYTE

Hoyte School closed Tuesday May 31. The pupils seemed so happy to welcome vacation.

Eight pupils recovered their diplomas and promotions from seventh grade. Some of these promotions were of course made on conditions.

Even though there were no graduation exercises the pupils who earned places of honor from seventh grade are to be given honorable mention.

Earline Angell made above an average of A through the term which gave her Valedictorian place.

Through the three grades preceding the seventh Grade Earline made an average of about an A.

James Dycus received second honors through the term.

There were no graduation exercises at the close of school, because a month before school closed the pupils were given their choice of a closing program or a trip to Austin. All with the exception of one voted for the trip to Austin. Therefore being democratic in our methods of carrying on, we had our trip to Austin. The trip was educational and enjoyed by all.

Here is hoping that every one has an enjoyable vacation.

which he is making his campaign for representative of the 65th Flotorial District:

"1. I am against any additional taxes on anyone, and will use my efforts and influence to reduce taxes by eliminating duplication and extravagance in Government.

"2. I am for full payment of the Old Age Pension.

"3. I am for placing the State Auditor under the Legislature.

"4. I am for a strict budget plan to insure rigid economy, and am for putting the State on a 'pay as you go' basis.

"5. I am against creating any more bureaus or departments.

"6. I am for abolishing the Old Age Assistance Commission and placing the supervision of Old Age Assistance in the hands of the Commissioners' Court in each County.

"There are only two major issues in this campaign for the Legislature, and they are Conservatism in Government and tax reduction. When elected, I will not vote for any additional taxes on anyone. I am for reducing the cost of Government and passing this saving on to the aged people of Texas.

"President Grant said 'the only way to resume the redemption of governmental promises and restore credit was to resume'. The only way to cut expenses of Government in Texas is simply to cut it. The expenses have been doubled and tripled in the past two decades, and they should now be cut in half. Trimming off, cheese paring, is of no value at this time. It is necessary wade in with the meat ax and cut from the top down.

"Economy in State and National Government does not consist in the wanton destruction of governmental functions or agencies, but rather in the sane and efficient operation of these. The elimination of waste will effect material savings in every department.

"When elected as a member of your State Legislature, it will be my purpose to lend my efforts toward the efficient functioning of each and all agencies of your State Government, and to eliminate only those whose functions may be efficiently performed by existing agencies and departments.

"I favor an old age pension law written in the language of the constitution, giving a pension to every man and woman in Texas who has lived here the required length of time and who is now sixty-five years of age or over, and who is not a habitual drunkard or a habitual criminal and who is not an inmate of a state institution. These men and women who have passed the sixty-fifth milesone are survivors of a noble people who made and built Texas. These men and women have done their part. It is not their fault that the time has come when it is even hard for the able-bodied brainy business man to make a living. These men and women deserve the modest pension voted them by the noble people of Texas two years ago. They have earned it, and I want Texas to honor herself by paying it. Right here, I want to say that I assisted in the adoption of the constitutional amendment and voted for it.

"When elected to the legislature from this district, I will at all times give a listening ear to the voice of the laborer. Both capital and labor are essential to the welfare of this country, and one cannot exist without the other. I shall at all times be fair to both capital and labor and use my best efforts to secure the proper co-operation between them so that aech shall be mutually benefitted.

"I believe in higher education. The common schools should have the best support that it is possible for us to give them. As a member of the legislature it will be my duty to vote on legislation which will affect the welfare of all the people of Texas. It is one of the most important positions in our government. On your wise choice of members of the legislature depends your future welfare. I believe that I can render service to you that will justify your confidence in me and pledge you my sincere efforts to promote the welfare and happiness of all the people and not of any particular class or creed.

"Now that you have read my platform, I ask that you give it due consideration and vote according to your own interests.

"I remain,

"Sincerely your friend,

"T. B. PARKHILL."

ODDS AND ENDS

I never can remember which Webster wrote the dictinary. Was it Noah, or Daniel, or either? I remember now, Daniel was the fellow I studied about in history who was prominent along about the same time Clay was.

I read somewhere that dog's ears are more sensitive to the vowel sounds than to the consonates. For instance they can distinguish between "Rover" and "River" but "Jake" and "Baker" would be all the same to them. I tried it out on my dog whose name is Jack and he responds as quickly to "Jac" or "Mac" but pays not the slightest attention if I call "Jic" or "Joke."

I used to like to read Odd McIntyre's column beginning at the bottom and reading up paragraph by paragraph.

I remember a certain school girl who was quite embarrassed when she took some not too fresh eggs on a picnic.

I can always think of the right thing to say after it is too late to say it. If another opportunity presented itself I would probably forget what I had planned to say.

I always enjoy good sermons but somehow those that are preached in the mornings always appeal to me most.

Some people can tell the minute they see anyone whether they like them or not.

I'm always writing a plural verb with a singular pronoun as in the preceeding paragraph.

Culling of Flocks Demonstrated at Poultry Meeting

Culling was done at all the flocks where demonstrations were held. Cull in July and August, the breeders were advised. Those to be culled are early moulters, hens yellow with pigment, small bodied hens, sick hens and any other that appears to have been laying at a slow rate or not at all. Late moulting hens with ragged plumage and faded shanks and beaks are the money makers, it was stated.

The demonstrations were held the past week at the farms of A. L. Kennon, Belmena; John McLerran, Hoyte; Frank Ffarrdrescher, Ad Hall. Others will be held in the latter part of the summer, F. E. Wooduufff, chairman, Agriculture Committee of the C of C says.

We were fairly well pleased with the crowds and the interest shown, from 35 to 40 people were in attendance at the Pfarrdrescher home.

Old Pebble Grove Cemetery Working Friday, June 17th

Old Pebble Grove Cemetery near Maysfield will be worked on Friday, June 17th, it was announced by R. R. Tyson several weeks ago. The information should have been published earlier but the data was mislaid in the Herald Office and was not found until this morning.

This is a very old cemetery. The people should respond and attend this working. A number of graves have been lost because the cemetery has not been worked. The people are urged to go to the cemetery Friday
